Newly-married Phaedra arrives at her husband's holiday home in the south of France in the blistering summer heat. Alone. There's a fully stocked wine cellar, staff at her fingertips, and a crystal-clear private lake. But when her stepson Leo shows up uninvited, Phaedra's newfound hedonism takes her on an unexpected journey.

In a world where everything is allowed and nothing is impossible, what are the limits of our desire? A new, intoxicating re-imagining of the myth of Phaedra exploring our hunger for self-fulfilment in the modern world, and the stories we tell one another to try and make sense of it all.
